Joy for campaigners as energy firm drops plans for Moss

Report by Danielle Thompson

CONTROVERSIAL fracking plans at Altcar Moss have been abandoned after an energy company withdrew its application to search for shale gas at the Aurora Energy Resources had wanted to drill, hydraulically fracture and do exploratory tests at two wells at the site near Great Altear but blamed a government 'moratorium' on drilling for its decision, claiming it amounted to a 'ban'.

In November, the government announced that fracking will not be allowed to proceed in England. Ministers took the decision on the basis of a report by the Oil and Gas Authority, which found that it is not currently possible to accur-ately predict the probability or magnitude of earthquakes linked to fracking opera-

Now, Ian Roche, managing director at Aurora, said in a statement this week: "It is clear from recent comments by the Minister of State for Energy that the government considers the 'moratorium' on hydraulic fracturing to be a de facto ban on chale are activity in the LIV. on shale gas activity in the UK.

"It is therefore perhaps unsurprising that (Lancashire) council officers have felt unable to determine this application."

He claimed there was no scientific or public policy justification for the morator-ium, adding, "Aurora will now address this issue with the Department of Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy.

A Department for Business and Energy and Industrial Strategy spokesperson reiterated the policy it introduced in November saying: "We will not remove the moratorium on fracking until the science categorically shows that it can be done safely."

Campaign groups welcomed the move by Aurora. Frack Free Lancashire said it was 'obviously pleased' the application was withdrawn, adding the earthquakes experienced by residents eleswhere in ienced by residents eleswhere in Lancashire in 2019 'provide a sound basis for any scientific or public policy justification required.'

St Thomas the Martyr Church

Historic church to be turned into community hub

THE historic church of St Thomas the Martyr in Up Holland, will be transformed into a 'community hub', with plans to open a cafe, post office and even a cinema screen!

The building, which has been at the Church Street grounds since 1307, will be made 'fit for purpose in the 21st century' with a range of exciting propos-

The plan is to retain and enhance the historical features of the building, but also make it a more modern venue for the wider community, with the usual services such as prayer, baptisms and weddings to carry on as normal.

Church members say the changes are three years in the making, having held 'long negotiations' with relevant bodies and carried out a consultation with local residents through a questionnaire.

To accommodate the new cafe and post office, parts of the church nave, which is the central part of the building, will be modified.

The Rector, Paul Lock, said: "We want to return to the Benedictine idea of the church being a community hub, a place open for everyone. The changes will help to revive our church by giving us the flexible space to organise many different activities and events there.

Council backs new campaign to help domestic abuse victims

Report by Tom Martin

WEST Lancashire Council has backed a new campaign to raise awareness and help stop domestic abuse.

Local councils, Lancashire Police, support agencies, the NHS and the Police and Crime Commissioner have all come together to create the #noexcuseforabuse campaign.

The aims are to raise awareness and understanding of domestic abuse, the help and support available to victims and perpetrators and how and where people can report their concerns.

With this in mind, the people of West Lancashire are being asked to support the campaign by:

- Recognising that anyone can be affected by domestic abuse and it can happen in all types of relationships - couples, parents, grandparents or wider family members

- Being aware that domestic abuse isn't just physical. It can be emotional, physical, sexual, financial or controlling behaviour

- Understanding that there's no excuse for abuse, whatever the circumstances

Members of the Lancashire Resilience Forum

- Trusting your instincts so if something you've

- Knowing where to find the help and support agencies in Lancashire, such as: www.noexcuse forabuse.co.uk

Reporting to the police if you're worried about someone

Angie Ridgwell, Chair of the Strategic Coordination Group of the Lancashire Resilience Forum and Chief Executive of Lancashire

County Council said: "All organisations who are part of the #noexcuseforabuse campaign are committed to keeping people safe and protecting those people who need help.

"Support services remain open for people who may be experiencing domestic abuse; they are ready and waiting to help you.

"There are a range of local agencies that can provide information, advice and support to people experiencing abuse, those who are abusing others and concerned members of the community.

Lancashire Police and Crime Commissioner Clive Grunshaw added: "Domestic abuse is unacceptable and I am proud to support this campaign to share that message loud and clear.

"We know that children are present in many of the domestic abuse incidents our officers attend and the long-term damage this can do is immeasurable

"People need to know that local services across Lancashire are ready to support them during the pandemic and beyond and this campaign is highlighting that information." For more information about the #noexcuseforabuse campaign and visit www.noexcuseforabuse.co.uk the website:

Plans to frack at Altcar Moss are abandoned

The Moss Alliance said they had spent 'many thousands of pounds of crowd-funded money and grants to oppose this application' and that the reas-ons to object are 'not limited to Aurora's excuse of the 'de facto ban on shale gas activity."

They said: "Aurora very much need to look inwards not outwards for their failures. Public opposition to fracking is at an all-time high and any support is diminishing daily. They, like their counterparts in the US have found, need to be also keeping up with the economics.

"However, we are not relaxing our opposition:

we are in this for the long haul."

Frack Free Formby added: "The application has been withdrawn but Aurora still plan to challenge the government on a 'de facto' ban.

"It look like great news but the government has still left the back door open. The fracking industry must produce compelling evidence on the control of seismic activity in order for licences to be gran-

The two groups thanked the hard work and determination of local anti fracking groups and the 'brilliant support' from local residents and petitioners, adding: "Aurora are challenging the government but, for now, the Altcar site is safe."

West Lancashire MP Rosie Cooper, who has long campaigned for an end to fracking in the UK, said: "It will be a huge relief to residents that Aurora have finally taken the decision to withdraw their application to frack in Altcar Moss within my con-

"As long as that application was in place, it was clear that fracking companies were relying on lobbying government to overturn the moratorium despite there being no evidence that fracking can be undertaken safely.

"Hopefully this is the final step in protecting West Lancashire residents from the risks that were evidenced in the reoccurring seismic activity at the Preston New Road fracking site.'

Lancashire County Council confirmed: "We note the applicant has withdrawn the application.

Artisan market heads for town

ORMSKIRK Artisan Market will take place on the first Sunday of the month on Moor Street between 11am -4pm, offering visitors a range of foods, clothing, jew-ellery, homeware, crafts and gifts. Organisers say that it will be a 'great opportunity for all the family to spend some time together relaxing and shopping for treats for themselves and the ones they love.' The market will take place on August 2, September 6 and October 4.

Councillor David Evans, whose Cabinet responsibilities include the market, said: "I am really pleased this has been organised. This market was very popular when it was held in Burscough and we are working hard to support our local towns and high streets with these initiatives."

Former Director of Development and Regeneration at West Lancs council, John Harrison

OWL question role of former chief planner

Questions are being asked about the 'integrity' of allowing a former chief planner at West Lancs council to now act as a planning agent for applications in the same borough.

Our West Lancashire (OWL) have raised questions with the Borough Council's Solicitor about the role being played by West Lan-cashire's former Chief Planner in a current planning application for Throstles Nest Farm on Pippin

Street in Burscough.
The application is for a Certificate of Lawfulness - Use of dwelling without compliance with the agricultural occupancy restric-tion imposed by the Section 52

Former Director of Development and Regeneration, John Harrison took early retirement from the Borough Council last November, but is now acting as a planning agent for a current planning application within the borough.

OWL's Chairman, Cllr Adrian Owens said, "One of my councillor colleagues has asked the Council's Solicitor's whether there is anything that precludes way.

"The Council's Code of Conduct requires Officers to act with integrity and states 'Employees should not use any information obtained in the course of their employment for personal gain or benefit. "Clearly, Mr Harrison is no longer a council employee but in the Civil Service restrictions are placed on former employees for up to two years after they leave the Civil Service.

"Mr Harrison has the opportunity and perfect right to put his great experience to work in hundreds of council areas throughout the country, but he has chosen to work in West Lancashire.

"His actions undermine public confidence in the planning system locally.

A spokesperson for West Lancs Borough Council told the Champion: "Mr Harrison agreed to leave the Council's employment by way of voluntary redundancy in November 2019.

"The Council's policies and procedures, including the Council's Officer Code of Conduct, ensure that Mr Harrison will not receive any advantage due to his former role.

Procedures

"The two applications in question are for Lawful Development Certificates in relation to dwellings that are claimed to have been used without compliance with long-standing planning consents which required occupancy by agricultural workers.

"These have been submitted with evidence from the landowner and are factual matters that will be determined in line with normal Council policies and procedures. "All submitted information is publicly available on the Council's website."

Triathlon organisers should 'think again' about staging West Lancs event, says Cllr

Report by Tom Martin

NEXT month's West Lancashire Summer Triathlon 2020 is still due to take place, despite concerns over coronavirus.

The popular event is scheduled to take place on Sunday, August 30 at Edge Hill University, and organisers Epic Events told the Champion they are "reviewing options for a COVIDsecure event.

Epic Events has already decided to cancel the Southport Triathlon, which was due to be held on Sunday, August 2, and local Skelmersdale councillor John Fillis believes the organisers should "think again" about holding the West Lancashire

Cllr Fillis said: "The triathlon is an excellent event, which is well managed and that's the problem. It has and it would attract hundreds of people from all over the country to participate and as spectators.

"Under normal circumstances we would be celebrating its success but these are not normal times. We would be setting a precedent for this and other outdoor and similar events right "People are already confused with mixed messages and a lack of clarity as to what may or may not be a risk during the COVID crisis. Under the current circumstance most local people are doing a fantastic job. It's important that we are open, honest and above all clear about what they need to do to protect themselves, their friends, family and the community as

"As such I have written to the council and chief executive raising my concerns and asked them to think again before they agree that this event goes ahead."

The Southport Triathlon had already been rescheduled due to the coronavirus, but the rearranged date of August 2 was also deemed unsafe and it was cancelled.

A statement from Epic Events posted on their website about the cancelled Southport event said: "Due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic and without any clear guidelines from the government regarding the operation of mass participation events we have taken the difficult decision to cancel the already rescheduled Southport Triathlon for 2020.

"It will also help us to establish the understanding that a parish church is a place for everyone because it belongs to everyone in the community.

"While the pandemic has delayed our plans for reopening it has allowed us the time to get work done inside the church. We look forward to welcoming lots of people as soon as we are able to."

There will be a community cafe with Wi-Fi access and a post office, both opening as soon as conditions allow, together with the return of the toddler group.

Library booking system in place after Skem facility finally reopens

Report by Danielle Thompson

A NEW booking system for Skelmersdale Library is now in place after the facility finally reopened on Monday following lockdown.

Skelmersdale is one of 12 libraries to open up again across Lancashire County Council - but people will need to book an appointment before visiting at www.lancashire.gov.uk/coronavirus-updates/libraries or by calling 0300 123 6703.

Other libraries, including Ormskirk, will remain closed for now.

When booking, customers will be asked to provide their name and contact details to support the NHS Test and Trace system. During their visit, customers will be required to wear a face covering.

The opening hours of the libraries will be Monday to Friday, 10am to 1pm. Customers can now book an appointment to use either of the two borrowing services available:

- Six of the best – a selection of up to six books made by library staff for the customer and collected from a library at the pre-booked appointment time - Browse and borriow – to come into the library for

As other libraries will remain closed for now, customers can make an appointment to visit any of the libraries that are open, even if it isn't their local library.

All visitors will be required to wear a face covering unless they are exempted. Children under 11 will not be required to cover their faces.

Access to computers, printers or photocopiers will not be available in the libraries at first. It is hoped to make these services available again soon.

...but Ormskirk site will remain closed

Skelmersdale Library has finally reopened

County Councillor Peter Buckley, Lancashire County Council's cabinet member for community and cultural services, said: "I'm grateful for everyone's patience and understanding, and I'd ask everyone to keep an eye on our website and social media channels where we will announce further details of other libraries reopening, when it is safe to do so."

Anyone wanting to return books can do this by placing them in the returned books container at the entrance of the libraries that are open. No appointment will be necessary to do this, but people may need to queue in a socially distanced way so that this process can be safely managed. Books will be quarantined for 72 hours before they are re-shelved.

Customers will not be charged for any overdue items. Library users are being asked to hold onto their books until they can return them to an open library and not try to post them through letter boxes or leave them outside libraries.

Books can be renewed online or by calling 0300 $123\,6704$.

£200,000 cattery is absolutely purr-fect for Woodlands staff

Delighted workers say 'our dreams have come true' after facility is finally opened

Report by Danielle Thompson

FURRY guests at Woodlands have moved into their purr-fect new £200,000 cattery after it was unveiled last week!

The team at Woodlands Animal Sanctuary, on Sandy Lane, in Holmeswood, say "our dreams have come true" after the new cattery was completed, with no less than 49 moggies moving in on July 18.

Their original cattery, which was in use even before the birth of Woodlands 15 years ago, was 'very tired' and had become unable to deal with some of the more extremes of weather, meaning some pens became ing some pens became unusable – which sadly meant the rescue wasn't able to help the number of cats it would normally do.

Sally McDerby from the sanctuary said: "Dreams really do come true! It was all hands on deck as staff and trustees donned their face masks and accomplished the mammoth feat of sorting and moving more than 15 years' worth of equipment from their old cattery to their new one, not to mention the 49 cats and kittens into their new apartments, lodges and suites.

"But apart from the great British weather, the weekend went very smoothly and it is all credit to Vickie and the team that it did so."

Sally believes the cattery will begin a new era for Woodlands and she can't wait for the

Resident opens garden to public for charity event

AN Aughton resident will open her garden to the public as a way to raise money for a charity which supports people who are unable to afford legal representation.

Susan Jessop, 49, wants locals to enjoy her "secret garden", on Black Moss Lane, and in doing so raise money for Support Through Court.

The event will be held on Saturday,
August 8 between 7.30-10.30pm.

Susan said: "The charity assists litigants in person who are unable to afford legal representation.

"Many people find it difficult to navigate the legal system and some people just need a little support in proceedings. The charity assists with these issues on a free of charge basis. The service is available to everybody and is non-vetted.

"As a charity we rely heavily on donations, and fund raising in the current climate is difficult with events such as the coronavirus. I have decided to open

Gym-goers delighted after they finally get a much-needed workout!

Report by Tom Martin

GYM-GOERS from across West Lancashire have finally been able to get a much-needed workout after they reopened for the first time since March.

Leisure centres owned by West Lancashire Borough Council, as well as independent and other gym chains, were allowed to open their doors once more on Saturday, July 25 after lockdown restrictions were lifted.

Banks Leisure Centre, Burscough Racquets and Fitness Centre, Nye Bevan Pool in Skelmersdale and Park Pool in Ormskirk all reopened, but with a string of new safety measures in place, including reduced opening hours and a new appointment system in place.

Other changes will involve wider lanes in swimming pools and a cap on the number of people allowed into fitness suites to ensure social distancing.

The Bannatyne Health Club also reopened in Skelmersdale. Although they haven't got a booking system in place, other measures include taking temperature checks on arrival, a need to wear face masks except when exercising, hand sanitiser stations and equipment spaced out.

Duncan Bannatyne from The Bannatyne Health Club said: "I'm absolutely delighted that we have reopened our Skelmersdale health club. A lot of hard work has been going on behind the scenes at all the Bannatyne health clubs to ensure that our large and spacious facilities, which are conducive to social distancing, are safe for members and staff.

"Although some wet area facilities will remain closed for the time being, we hope to be able to reopen these in the near future

"Most of our members in Skelmersdale have been loyal throughout the pandemic and I am delighted to be welcoming them back. I'd also like to personally thank the staff who have remained positive through the very difficult last few months.'

This material will form the basis of the exhibition. Exhibitors will also be asked to undertake a short (5-10 minute) conversation over the phone or online with local storyteller Jacqueline Harris, to talk about the story behind their submission.

Jacqueline Harris said: "While everyone

Campaigner claims change to Agriculture Bill will be 'dangerous' for gene-edited food

Nicola believes law change will 'relax safety checks'

Report by Tom Martin

A CAMPAIGNER from Skelmersdale who is a member of Alliance for Food Purity wants to raise awareness of "risky, gene-edited" foods coming into the UK.

Nicola Escott wants to highlight a new amendment to the Agriculture Bill currently making its way through Parliament, which she claims will relax safety checks on food.

Campaigners believe it will lead to unregulated gene-edited foods and crops going without safety checks and labelling.

Nicola Escott said: "If the seemingly small amendment is passed, it would unleash a ticking time bomb by removing the safety measures currently in place. It is called deregulation, but it is frankly dangerous." frankly dangerous.

"Some scientists who have carried out handson research say that gene-edited foods cannot be assumed to be safe, but require controls and safety checks.

"This is because the risks include unexpected novel toxins and allergens in our food. Their evidence points to many hazards, risks, and limitations of the new genetic engineering technology.

However, those in favour of the bill, including The British Society of Plant Breeders (BSPB), believe it will give Britain's scientists and breeders access to the latest gene editing techniques and mark a change in prospects for crop improvement to support more sustainable, productive and climate resilient agriculture.

They also believe it will be an important step in re-aligning Britain with the regulatory stance of other countries around the world.

Samantha Brooke, who recently took over as BSPB's new chief executive, said: "Advanced gene editing techniques such as CRISPR-Cas9 can improve the speed and precision of crop breeding, opening up significant opportunities to keep pace with demands for increased agricultural productivity, resource-use efficiency, more durable pest and disease resistance, improved nutrition and resilience to climate change.

Founder of support service nominated for entrepreneur award

Report by Tom Martin

THE founder of a support service based in Ormskirk for adults and children has been nominated for the Young Entrepreneur Award 2020.

Rebecca Heyes is the managing director of The Inclusive Learning Academy, which provides dyslexia and dyscalculia assessments.

She has been shortlisted in the regional finals of the Great British Entrepreneur Awards, along with other inspiring entrepreneurs.

Rebecca started her entrepreneurial journey back in 2016 and shortly later opened The Inclusive Learning Academy.

The office is based in Ormskirk town Rebecca Hayes centre and the sessions take place in a purposely designed classroom which allows staff to use a range of resources and technology to support teaching and learning.
Rebecca has not only used her determination and hard work to start her own company, but she has also just completed her third degree with Edge Hill University and is lookforward to starting her fourth in September 2020.

Founder of the Great British Entrepreneur Awards, Francesca James, said: "Given what we've seen over the past few months, the 2020 edition of the Great British Entrepreneur Awards is arguably the most important. Now, more than ever, it's vital that we celebrate the achievements of the country's entrepreneurs

and their determination in the face of such adversity

"So many entrepreneurs will have been fighting to keep their business afloat over the past few months, and indeed will be over the coming months.

"That's exactly why we launched the Pivot category; to recognise those that have managed to adapt and thrive throughout this period.
"I want to send my congratulations to each and every single entrepreneur who has made it to the shortlist this year, and I wish them the very best of luck for the regional finals." This year, with face to face events challenging, the regional heats will be held online on September 23.

Shopper hits out at 'ugly tarmac' used in Ormskirk town centre

Report by Tom Martin

TARMAC used to replace a section of pavement in Ormskirk town centre has been described as "ugly" by a local shopper.

The pathway, outside Dorothy Perkins, on Moor Street, needed replacing but instead of using the same or similar concrete slabs, black tarmac was used by contractors.

A Champion reader criticised the work, claiming a "like for like replacement" should have been used.

She said: "It is only a few years since Ormskirk town centre was refurbished at great expense. This year it was deep cleaned and yet contractors can dig the paving up and replace it with tar.

"If paving is taken up it should be in the contract that paving is replaced like for like.

"This has been on ongoing problem which has been brought to the attention of Lancashire County Council several times over the past 12 months and yet they choose to ignore the issue."

The Champion contacted Lancashire County Council for comment

Sniffer dogs used by engineers to find cracks in gas pipes!

Report by Tom Martin

SNIFFER dogs are being used by engineers in Skelmersdale to help find the tiniest of cracks in gas pipes!

Former police explosives and drugs dogs Nelly, Midge and Milly, who are all Springer Spaniels, are now at work for the region's gas network Cadent.

The dogs have been described as "extra tools for the toolbox", adding to a range of methods that can help fix issues with water getting into underground gas pipes.

Just half an egg cup of water is enough to block a household's service pipe – the narrow pipe which carries gas at the lowest pressure from the big main in the road into a property.

These pipes might run for long distances underneath footpaths and verges, gardens and driveways. It is hugely disruptive if engineers need to dig it all up to otherwise find the source.

Codent heard about former police dog sergeant

Cadent heard about former police dog sergeant instructor Steve Foster and his specially-trained English Springer Spaniels, and brought them to the North West, and specifically Skelmersdale, for the first time this month to sniff out previously elusive points through which water was getting into gas pipes.

The clever canines amazed even the most experienced engineers by tracking down small hairline fractures in the underground gas pipes.

David Leah, a repair team leader for Cadent, who's worked for 41 years in the industry, said:

"When we dug down to where the dogs detected something, it was spot on - or, a foot away at most. It was unbelievable. The dogs are going to be a great asset for us.

Rachel Endfield, Business Improvement Specialist in Cadent's North West network, whose idea it was to bring the dogs to the North West, said: "When water is getting into a customer's gas sup-ply, it can be extremely difficult to locate the source of the ingress. Sometimes it can be like looking for a needle in a haystack. Water will get in through the tiniest of cracks, which can cause problems for our customers. It can stop gas getting through and they could lose supply.

"We're determined to find innovative ways to tackle this and prevent our customers from losing supply. I'd heard about the gas detection dogs that Steve has trained for exactly this job. We've had them in the North West network for two days now, the first time we've used them, and we've seen some fantastic results already."

County Lines crackdown can hardly be described as 'a success' by police

May I first make it clear that I am 100% in favour of crime-fighting in our community.

However, if a professional practice resulted in a lower than 7% success rate, I suggest that it would be deemed as a failure.

In the recent crackdown on the County Lines drugs activity, police report that from 228 stop and search procedures only 13 arrests were forthcom-

On the contrary, I suggest that a great majority of those 215 innocent people will feel that their civil liberties have been violated and embarrassed that any onlookers considered them as criminals.

I mean our police force is exemplary isn't it?

Chris Henry,

A penny for your thoughts!

You don't get many people asking for price increases

Why don't all shops, hospitality and commercial businesses increase the cost of everything by £00.01p?

I'm sure the general public wouldn't object to this. In fact, it's probably something that a lot of people have been trying to change for years!

Unimaginable sacrilege planned at Parbold Hill

There can be few, more dramatic, breath-taking views than that as you top the brow of Parbold Hill heading west – a view so expansive it feels like flying!

Which is why astonishment followed by disbelief were my over-riding emotions when I read Andrew Nowell's recent letter about the application to turn the top of Parbold Hill into a dumping ground!

There must be a very good reason why Maybrook Developments, who own the old landfill quarry on the top of hill, are planning this unimaginable sacrilege. They surely couldn't be doing this just to make money?

So I started to read up on the

The latest statement to appear on LCC Planning Portal on June 12 is by a firm of supportive architects in Appley Bridge.

They claim that the purpose of dumping another 120,000 tonnes of waste is to stop rainwater soaking into the old landfill and emerging as leachate (contaminated water) which the owner is having to pump at great expense away into the sewer in Appley Bridge.

However in the days before we were aware of the dangers of pollution, sites like Parbold Hill were designed to encourage groundwater (not rainwater) to flow through the landfill and flush out the con-

So, no matter how much the owner dumps on the top he will always have to pump out the waste water until any contamination is spent. There is now very little evidence of surviving contamination.

The statement talks of huge depressions in the old landfill surface which are ponding rainwater and encouraging it to soak in.

However, local maps and recent drone surveys show closely packed contours indicative of a steep, free draining,

Then there is the matter of the site entrance. This statement variously claims that – there will not be any need for a new site entrance; that there will be a new site entrance; that the new site entrance will be removed at the end of the project; that the new entrance will be left permanently?

So, leachate that can't be cured, water-logged hollows that aren't there; a new unsightly site entrance of dubious status. Maybe it is all about the money after all!

Penny Walker,

Pop-up cycle lanes waste of money!

What a waste of time, energy and money these pop-up cycle lanes are in West Lancs.

I have not seen a single bike rider use either of these so-called pop-up lanes.

However I have observed a build up of other traffic.

Once more our council tax is wasted, and for what? Councillors say they have done it to save the people of Ormskirk from the transmission of the Covid virus.

I don't think so.

Why not ask us what is good for

John Hearn,

Dire need for leisure facility

While I am usually in favour of Mitchell is this. If not Churchmust point out to Cllr Kate Mitchell that Ormskirk is in dire need of a new leisure facility.

The present one is well past its sell-by date and doesn't meet the needs of a growing community.
I agree that Churchfields is a wonderful green space and if there was an alternative area lor she is surely in the best place available then the new leisure to do so? facility could go there.

However my question to Cllr

'Our West Lancs' policies, I feel I fields then where is the new must point out to Cllr Kate facility to go? Especially as the Mitchell that Ormskirk is in dire council has agreed to return the present leisure facility site back to green park area (as I understand the proposal).

It's all very well pooh poohing the idea but then please offer a viable alternative. As a council-

Geography researcher wins £25k fund to explore coastal communities in Thailand

Report by Tom Martin

GEOGRAPHY researcher from Edge Hill University has been awarded funding to explore how coastal communities in Thailand can use vital data to manage risks around climate change.

Dr Simon Dickinson, Lecturer in Human Geography and whose research interests are in how non-governmental and community groups drive social change, has been awarded £25,000 from the Global Challenges Research Fund (GCRF) to explore how marginalised groups in Thailand are making use of new environmental data to tackle inequalities.

Thailand's shoreline and coastal communities are already extremely vulnerable to storms, floods and coastal erosion due to climate change, with some parts facing potential sea-level rises of one metre in the next 40

This poses an unprecedented challenge to Thai planning agencies who face spiralling costs of up to £70million by 2100 due to such environmental risks.

At a time when knowledge about the risks of climate change is growing daily, the wider issues of how people make sense of it and how best to communicate it has never been more important.

Dr Dickinson explained: "This funding represents a real opportunity to examine how knowledge about climate risk can be more meaningfully understood by different communities.

"It's easy to forget that the data researchers produce can be used in quite different ways and settings. I want to find out how informa-tion is being used by communities to bring about impactful change in a variety of ways.

Dr Simon Dickinson

"In Thailand, there are instances of data being used to draw public attention to the social drivers of climate vulnerability – gender and class inequality, for example. I want to know, what does this new knowledge about risk mean for communities? How might they use it to draw attention to already-existing forms of inequality? These sorts of questions are critical in understanding how climate data is used effectively across people and places.

Champion MOTORS

NEWS DESK · 01704 392 400 www.champnews.com

I suspect that Mitsubishi will sit tight until the very last moment

IT'S NOT so much goodbye as the last orders bell being rung, at ten-and-a-bit minutes to eleven. I suspect Mitsubishi will be getting a double round in, sticking a few quid in the jukebox, and sitting tight until the last possible

You might have already heard this week that it's effectively chucking out time for the Japanese carmaker's UK models, but don't for a moment think that its showrooms are all going to shut next week – far from it, in fact.

Even so, the decision to stop bringing new models to the UK, and to take the current ones off the shelf the moment they no longer comply with emissions regulations, is a bitter moment in a motor industry that's been besieged by one blow after another as sales fell off a cliff during the national lockdown.

Even though the Outlander PHEV spent years as the nation's best-selling plug-in vehicle and the L200 took a sizeable chunk of the increasingly lucrative pick-up market, Mitsubishi has decided to focus its efforts on other markets, particularly Asia, instead.

Which is a shame, because with the exception of the utterly dreadful Carisma of the Nineties which, ironically, was utterly devoid of charisma – I don't think that it's ever foisted a truly bad car on us Brits. Certainly, the 30-year-old Galant we run at Classic Car Weekly, which we've been trying to nurse to 250,000 miles, has had its fair share of niggles but it steadfastly refuses to give up, no matter how many mega-mileage drives we throw its

The Shogun is an off-roading institution – in fact, I'd argue the Eighties original is firmly into classic car territory now, doing everything the Range Rover did, only more reliably. And I can't venture halfway into a column about old Mitsubishis and not get misty-eyed about the Evo VI Tommi Makinen, a swivel-eyed loon of a turbocharged saloon that devoured greasy B-roads better than anything else on sale at the time.

My own particular favourite was the Evo's less unhinged and cheaper sibling – the Galant VR4, which they sold as part of its Ralliart range at the turn of the century. It wasn't as showy as the rally-bred Evo, but that was part of the appeal – it might not have had an enormous rear wing or a little pump that squirted water on the intercooler during press-on driving, but it packaged four-wheel-drive and a 280bhp twin turbo V6 behind a body that didn't shout about its performance credentials. It was an Evo for people who don't like being looked at. Maybe that's the problem with Mitsubishi these days – we've all forgotten they've made some cracking cars over the years.

Hopefully the bigwigs in Japan will see sense, invest in more on-trend electric cars and bring them over here... and reinvent the Evo while they're at it.

Until then, best get your orders in before the bar shuts.
